
Zeynah

Your phone always answers. Even at 10 pm.

Zeynah reads messages, checks for typos and asks when things are unclear — before a mistake gets expensive. Around the clock. In 20+ languages.

Pilot program — 3 spots available

Why now?

- Skilled labour shortage: office staff is hard to find — and expensive.
- Customers order at night via WhatsApp — whoever replies first in the morning gets the deal.
- A single wrong digit in an order can cost thousands of euros.

What Zeynah finds in a single morning

These four warnings come from real businesses. Not made up.

SOS · Typo

2,000 instead of 200

One zero too many in the request. Probably a typo.

SOS · Open invoices

€42,295

21 days overdue. Right at the top — not hidden.

SOS · Cold chain

7.9 °C

Measured three days ago. The correction is still missing.

SOS · Batch

3 days

Past the date — and not blocked yet.

Three steps. No decision without a human.

Zeynah reads, checks, asks — but never decides alone.

Read

WhatsApp, voice message, email, phone, PDF.
Zeynah recognizes everything — and turns it into a clean order.

Check

Unknown sender, unusual quantity, possible mistake: Zeynah flags it in red and suggests.

Approve

Only when a human confirms does the order exist. Zeynah never acts on its own.

How a request works

The customer writes as they always do — short, casual, no form.

Customer writes

Morning. For tomorrow: 400 veal 20s and 200 turkey 15s.

Zeynah recognizes

Sample Business North, delivery Thursday.
400 kg veal kebab 20 kg
200 kg turkey kebab 15 kg
€5,340 net. Approve?

Approval

Yes

The zero mistake

Caution: 2,000 kg.
Probably one zero too many — ask again?

What decision-makers really ask

How does the pilot work?

We set up Zeynah with your real data, customers and processes. You test with real requests from your daily business. At the end you decide at your leisure — no drama.

What happens if the internet goes down?

Zeynah runs in the cloud with redundant infrastructure. Requests are caught up automatically. In an emergency you can always fall back to your local software.

What about data protection?

GDPR-compliant, servers in the EU, all data encrypted. We built it in from the start — not retrofitted.
